TELEGRAPHIC NEWS FROM ALL PARTS OF THE STATES.

The First C. P. R. Train to Whatcom—A Train Load of Passengers Nearly Lose Their Lives—An Open Switch—Japanese Prince in America.

WHATCOM, June 19.—On Monday next the first west-bound Canadian Pacific passenger train will arrive here, via Cornwall railroad, at 1 o'clock p.m., and will leave here on the return trip to Mission at 2 o'clock. These are the schedule hours for arrival and departure. Canadian Pacific freights will also arrive here regularly after the 22nd, but the time has not been agreed upon. Besides these, local freight and passenger trains will continue to run as now, from Whatcom to Sumas City. Extensive preparations have been made by the citizens here to properly celebrate the arrival of the first regular Canadian Pacific train, and invitations have been issued asking the attendance of state and municipal officers from abroad. Messrs. Cornwall, Bell and Heyward, of the Bellingham Bay and British Columbia railroad, are here, and will probably remain to witness the advent of the first Canadian Pacific train over their road. The steamers Premier and Eastern Oregon will connect with Canadian Pacific trains here regularly after the 22nd.

A Flood in Kansas.

FORT SCOTT, Kan., June 20.—It is feared that heavy loss of life has resulted from last night's storm. The large dams of mud of Hartman and H. H. Lamb, broke about 15 minutes after the storm began under the heavy pressure of the water, and the bottom lands were completely flooded. Six houses were swept away by the torrent and it is almost certain many of their inmates perished. The water in what is known as Buckrun bottom, is fully a mile wide. A number of men women and children sought refuge in trees and on roofs of houses, remaining there all night. They were taken off by boats this morning.

Saved Many Lives.

WELLSVILLE, O., June 20.—When Wm. Porter was going home from work on Thursday evening, he noticed that the switch at the Champion brick works, a half-mile below this city, on the Cleveland & Pittsburg Railway, had been left open. The evening express was in sight and rapidly drawing near. He ran to the switch and succeeded in turning it, when the engine was not more than 15 feet away. The train was full of passengers many of whom were bound for Pittsburg, and it was running at a high rate of speed. The switch is on the edge of an embankment with the river below.

A Japanese Prince.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 20.—Prince Kotohito, of Japan, has arrived in New York from Europe and will reach San Francisco next Wednesday. He has been a student of military service in France for three or four years and is on his way home. He is traveling incognito, but with two attendants, Chamberlain Tanaka and a body servant. The Prince will send one day in this city as a guest of his relative, Sutemo Chilna, the Japanese Consul. He will go north then to Vancouver, whence he will sail for home on the Canadian Pacific steamer Empress of Japan.

Sullivan's Playfulness.

SAN JOSE, June 20.—Sullivan took a great many drinks at the hotel bar before he left for Santa Cruz this morning, treating a great crowd. A stranger came in who did not recognize the pugilist. The latter told him to drink, but the stranger demurred. Sullivan gave him a slap and the man keeled over. Sullivan was hurried out and into a hack and driven to the depot. He stated between drinks, in reply to a question as to whether he would fight Slavin. "I will fight any —— —— man that ever drawed breath."

Looking after Number One.

CITY OF GUATEMALA, June 20.—A great sensation has been caused here by the discovery that six millions in bonds were issued for the redemption of treasury notes, instead of the three million called for. It is further stated that Barilias sold two millions worth of these bonds at forty per cent. of their face value, pocketed the money, and placed the remainder of the bonds in the treasury to redeem notes. This piece of work has caused great consternation.

A Young Hero's Death.

OMAHA, June 20.—A 12-year-old school boy named Miles died a hero's death during the recent storm near Norfolk. The school house is situated in a ravine. The water began pouring in through the windows before the teacher and pupils realized their danger. Young Miles conducted the teacher and seven pupils safely through the torrent, but several others drifted away, and in his efforts to save these he was drowned. Cora Hamlen and Anna Cox also perished.

He Gained his End.

CINCINNATI, June 20.—A large number of passengers over the Cincinnati & Covington Suspension bridge, saw a man deliberately jump into the river, early yesterday afternoon. He was rescued alive by a boatman, and taken to a hospital, where he died two hours later. He was able to speak and to say that his motive was suicide, but refused to identify himself other than to give his name, Richard Rhein.

A French Frigate.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 20—The French frigate Dobourdieu arrived from Panama this morning. She has been around the world and has come to San Francisco for repairs.

Will Marry her Father's Slayer.

SEATTLE, Wn., June 20.—The jury last night acquitted Taylor Stark, who has been on trial for the murder of Neil Bloomstran several months ago. Stark was attentive to Bloomstran's daughter, Chestie, but her parents forbade his coming to the house. Stark, however, came to the house one evening and met Bloomstran. A quarrel ensued and the latter was shot dead. Stark and Chestie Bloomstran will be married to-day.

A Large Bonus.

SAN DIAGO, Cala., June 20.—Last evening a meeting was held by the Chamber of Commerce to meet Dr. Charles J. Eames, who is largely interested in the Pittsburg iron works. He makes a proposition to build an iron and steel plant on San Diago Bay of one hundred tons daily capacity for a subsidy of $200,000 in money and land. The proposition was accepted and suitable committees appointed.

A Lover's Crime.

COLUMBUS, Wis., June 20.—Amelia Heinman, of Fall River, was shot yesterday by her jealous lover, Seymour Turner, a farm hand, on Rockefeller's farm. Turner then turned his weapon upon himself and inflicted a bad wound in his breast. It is thought he will recover, however. Miss Heinman received two bullets and will die.

Weds an Indian.

NEW YORK, June 19.—Miss Elaine Goodale, the well known author, who is government inspector of Indian schools in North and South Dakota, and Dr. Charles A. Eastman, an Indian of the Sioux tribe, who is the government physician at the Pine Ridge agency, were married to-day at the Church of the Ascension.

A Veto Over-Ridden.

BUENOS AYRES, June 20.—The President has sent a message to Congress in which he vetoed the bill granting six months delay upon bills payable in gold or silver. The chamber of deputies, immediately upon the receipt of the message passed the bill over the President's veto by a two-thirds majority.

RAIL TO RUSSIA.

Charles Francis Adams Thinks it May be Constructed After a Time.

CINCINNATI, June 18.—Hon. Charles Francis Adams, of Boston, ex-president of the Union Pacific has written a letter to E. H. Wells, the Alaskan explorer, concerning the latter's published scheme for building a railway to Alaska. Mr. Adams says:

"When I was last in the Dominion and also in Alaska, it seemed to be not impossible the time might come when a railroad would be needed, and would be remunerated for, from Winnipeg northwesterly into the mining country of Alaska; but was equally persuaded of the fact that this time had not come; neither do I believe it will come within the next 10 or 15 years."

This significant letter is construed as a conservative admission from Adams that the Alaska railway may actually be built within the next twenty years, thus forming a link of the chain that is to connect the Czar's Siberian railways with American.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE.

Matters of Interest Going Forward in the Sporting World, Here and Elsewhere.

DEMANDED HIS MONEY.

NEW YORK, June 20.—Frank P. Slavin was a pretty angry man for quite a while yesterday. He had been told that he would receive his share of the purse he won by defeating Jake Kilrain at the Hoffman House at 11 o'clock in the morning, but no one met him there to give it to him. He waited until noon, and then he got somewhat rampageous, and it took all of Charley Mitchell's diplomacy and persuasive powers to convince him that something was not wrong. He and Mitchell went to Sheepshead Bay race track, where they saw Dick Roche, President of the Granite Athletic Club. Roche got a prominent turf magnate to give him his check for $5000, a leading bookmaker cashed it, and the money was given to the pugilist. When the match was made, it was announced the purse of $10,000 was to be divided, $7500 to winner and $2500 to the loser. This was the intention of the management, but Kilrain would not fight unless the purse was cut equally in two, $5000 to each man. Slavin did not want to do this, but he finally consented on the condition that the fight should be on the level. Kilrain agreed to this, and no one who saw the battle can doubt that each man done his level best.

TOO GOOD TO BE LOST.

BRITISH GUINEA DIRECTED TO MAINTAIN HER POSITION.

Republicans Active in Portugal—Printers Want Eight Hours Work a Day—Austria Becoming More Liberal—A Journalist in Jail for Blackmail.

LONDON, June 20.—It is stated that the Colonial Government of British Guinea has been directed to maintain, without compromise or concession, the frontier known as Chonsburg's line against either passive or hostile claims on the part of Venzuela. To concede the Venzuelan claim would be to surrender the richest mineral district in the colony, as well as to abandon the posts commanding the entrance to Oronoca river, and the Barima and Amacuru rivers. It is certain that under no circumstances will the Venzuela claim be allowed, although the British Government would make some unimportant concessions for a definite settlement of the dispute. The mineral districts, which are the principal subject of contention, promise to be equal to any in Australia or California, and the parties operating the mines are extremely anxious for a retention of English control.

REPUBLICANISM SPREADING.

The Republicans are more active than ever in Portugal, and one of the newspapers has been suppressed for the insolent tone of its attacks on the government. They will hardly miss the paper, however, as half a dozen others have sprung up since the ratification of the Anglo-Portuguese convention.

PRINTERS AND EIGHT HOURS.

A Berlin dispatch says the printers of that city have been approached from Vienna on the subject of a grand international strike for eight hours. American and Australian printers will be invited to join in the movement, which will take place in the autumn.

AUSTRIA BECOMING MORE LIBERAL.

The practical surrender by Count Taafe to the German liberals, is viewed with considerable satisfaction in Berlin, as placing Austria in a line with Germany, not only in foreign alliance but in matters also of domestic policy. Count Taafe had been preparing for the change ever since the May election, and it was in line with the policy that an imperial decree was issued removing the ban of martial law from Vienna and Komenburg. The Government has renounced its right to institute domiciliary searchers, to confiscate letters, and to order arrests without judicial warrants. It seems singular that one of the great European capitals should for the past seven years have been under martial law without the people generally being aware of the fact. The reason is that the ordinary laws were not interfered with, and the people went about their business without interruption. Only when some anarchist or socialist has been attempting a disturbance did martial law step in to seize and get rid of him. The decree still exempts persons accused of revolutionary offences from the benefits of trial by jury, so that there will virtually be no change for such people, while ordinary citizens will be protected as before by the ordinary laws. An attache of the Austrian embassy at Berlin says that the new departure in Vienna means that German influence once more, after many years will occupy a preponderant place in Austrian affairs.

A BLACKMAILING JOURNALIST.

It is said that a number of prominent people in Vienna were greatly relieved when Gustave Mazzini, the blackmailing journalist, went to prison without opening his mouth. Mazzini, it appears, had been extorting money from some Frenchmen, whom he recognized as fugitives from justice in France, of this he was convicted. This crime, however, is said to have been but one of a number, some of Mazzini's victims being among the leading people of Vienna.

VERNEY'S GENEROSITY.

Capt. Verney, the former member of parliament, who was convicted of conspiracy to entice a girl named Nellie Beckett away from England for immoral purposes, has since his commitment to jail contributed £400 to the fund for the relief of the young woman.

A HORSE DISEASE.

The disease known as pinkeye is very prevalent among army horses at York and other places.

GOVERNMENT INSURANCE.

The Government will probably appoint a commission to enquire into the propositions for a system of insurance for the benefit of aged working people, on a plan somewhat modelled after that of the German.

THE KAISER'S RECEPTION.

Enormous preparations are being made in London for the reception of the German Kaiser. The fireworks, it is claimed, will be on the most magnificent scale ever displayed in England's capital. The Kaiser will arrive in England on the 4th of July, according to programme, and proceed to Windsor, where he will remain until July 8th. Meantime he will be present at several fetes, such as the wedding of Princess Louise, daughter of Prince and Princess Christian, and the silver wedding and garden party at Cumberland lodge. On the 8th of July the Kaiser will arrive at Buckingham Palace, and attend the opera at Covent Garden. On the 9th he will attend a garden party at Marlboro House and Albert Hall. In the evening he will lunch in the city, on the 10th; on the 11th he will lunch at the German Embassy, and go to the Crystal Palace, after the naval exhibition. He will leave England on the 13th of July.

Getting Hotter for the Prince.

LONDON, July 19.—The position of the Prince of Wales is becoming more and more compromised by the complications growing out of the famous Tranbyeroft card party. The young German Emperor, having taken the liberty of lecturing his uncle on his conduct in that affair the breach between the two has been re-opened, and may lead to a postponement, if not abandonment, of the Emperor's visit to England. Should, however, the Emperor persist in his visit, he will, in all probability, not find the Prince of Wales to welcome him when his fleet arrives off Sheerness, and, for similar reasons, he will not be accompanied on his visit to the city by the Prince, whose absence, however, will be more than made up by the presence of the Queen. The police authorities of Birmingham are afraid that the Prince of Wales will meet with a hostile demonstration in the streets when he comes there to open the new courts, on the 21st of July, and will make careful arrangements and stringent regulations to prevent them.

FROM OTTAWA.

The Government Afraid to Face a Vote—McGreevyism Exposed.

OTTAWA, June 20.—There is considerable comment here over the fact that the Government were frightened to go into supply yesterday, owing to Mr. Laurier having given notice that he would move a motion condemnatory of their policy, which took a wide departure from that of the late Sir John. According to British proceedent which th eGovernment values little, the opportunity to submit this motion should be abandoned, more especially when the leader of the Opposition is good enough to warn the Government he intended doing so. Several Government supporters gave notice that they wanted to be paired, and the Government are now trying to whip their rebellious followers into line.

Senator Macdonald, of Victoria, has introduced a bill to grant divorce courts to those provinces, all except two, which do not now possess them. He proposes to invest the Superior Courts with authority to adjudicate all questions of this kind. It will probably pass, as it is time these scandals were taken out of the Senate.

The bill incorporating the Vancouver Dock & Ship Building Co., and the bill granting a charter to the Beechy Bay Ferry Co. have passed a third reading.

The prices of Government lands in Manitoba, classes A and B, has been increased from $2.50 to $3 per acre.

The Government supporters are secretly advocating a change in the duties on raw sugar, but strong N.P. men fear that if the party begins tinkering the tariff, or shows a disposition to amend it in the direction of greater freedom of trade, that the whole elaborate edifice will crumble to pieces.

The case against McGreevy has been practically made out, and any damaging evidence that may hereafter be given can only add to the enormity of his offence. It was proved yesterday McGreevy secured an increased price for dredging, after the contracts had been signed, in consideration of the contractors, Larkin & Co., contributing to a corruption fund. In other words, McGreevy's influence with Langevin's department robbed the country of many thousands of dollars. The Rykert scandal pales with insignificance in comparison with the shamelessness of the Quebecers' fraud. Rykert's sin was that of a lobbyist, in procuring timber limits through political influence as a member of Parliament, which he afterwards sold at a large profit. Rykert's methods were scandalous, but McGreevy's are shown to have been infamous. The connection between McGreevy and the Public Works Department has yet to be established in full. Murphy's evidence is conclusive in respect to the former. The Esquimalt dock contract netted the contractors a profit of a quarter of a million dollars, which was divided between five partners. The Conservatives are becoming afraid that it will be impossible to save Langevin. McGreevy, they admit, is doomed.

Murphy swore that the sum of 41,000 had been contributed as "donations" out of the Esquimalt dock contract. These donations went principally to McGreevy, as payment for his influence with the department. The scandal is the talk of the House.

A Triple Alliance.

LONDON, June 19.—Advices from St. Petersburg state that the Russian Government is prepared to join in enforcing a close season for Behring Sea on terms agreed upon between the United States and England. The Russian Government is favorable to the American side of the controversy, and has given the United States such aid as was possible against the depredations without compromising Russia, and orders to this effect were long ago promulgated to officers in that section of the Empire. Russia, it is stated, is anxious to preserve the seals from destruction, and apprehends that a season or two more with a free field for Canadian sealers would put an end to the industry which Russia hopes to make largely profitable when there is more perfect communication with the Pacific shores of Siberia and European Russia. During the past season poaching was rigorously suppressed within Russian waters, and the Czar has been prepared, even if no agreement had been arrived at, to follow the same course this year. For this season the sealers have carefully shunned the vicinity of the islands under Russian authority. No doubt is felt that Germany will also go into the arrangement and refuse the use of her flag for hunting. As to France, nothing has yet been intimated, but it is not believed that the Republic will antagonize an arrangement eminently satisfactory to Russia; while these powers are in line with America and Britain, the British Government is satisfied that seals can be protected.

CORT IN TROUBLE.

The Woman Deverchere Produces Proof That She is Not His Wife.

From the Seattle Telegraph, June 19.]

From certain admissions made yesterday by L. C. Gilman, attorney for John White, commonly called John Cort, places that gentleman in a very peculiar position, and it is more than probable before the case is settled Mr. Cort will be called upon to answer the charge of perjury. The habeas corpus proceedings commenced by Mary Louise Deverchere, mother of John Cort's children, had been set for a hearing to-day, but yesterday Thomas Hardin, of Fishback & Hardin, who represent the mother, applied to Judge Lichtenberg for a continuance.

In support of his application Attorney Hardin presented an affidavit which, if true, places her suppos d husband in a very peculiar position. In the application for the writ of habeas corpus the mother made the startling declaration that the two little boys were not born in wedlock. Cort at once commenced a suit for divorce against his supposed wife and in his complaint he swore that he and Mary Louise Deverchere were married in Minneapolis by Rev. F. T. Wheeler, and that he and the woman were man and wife.

According to the statements made in the affidavit there was a very serious obstacle in the way of the marriage of the two. The woman swears point blank that she was already married when she met Cort. On June 15th, 1880, she was married in Norfolk, Va., to Geneross Napoleon. She has never been divorced from him and is still his wife. The statement of the woman is backed up by a telegram dated Norfolk, Va., June 15, and signed by J. A. Coleman, clerk of the court, stating that the record of the marriage appears in the books of that county, and another telegram in answer to one from the attorneys for a certified copy of the record, stating that the certified copy is now on its way to Seattle.

The statement that they were married in Minneapolis is denied and she declares that no marriage ceremony was performed, and that the alleged certificate of marriage presented by Cort is a forgery. She sets forth the belief that all the signatures to that document were signed by a man who formerly was employed by Cort as the leader of his orchestra, but she cannot remember his name. In support of her claim a telegram dated June 17, from C. B. Tirrell, clerk of the court in Minneapolis, is presented. Mr. Tirrell says he has made a careful search of the records of Hennepin county, Minn., in which Minneapolis is situated, that no such record as Cort claims in his complaint exists in that county, and that no such person as Rev. Mr. Wheeler has ever been known in that vicinity.

Mrs. Napoleon swears that before she met Cort, she was a good, virtuous woman. Since 1884 she has lived with Cort, and that is the only act, she says, which has not been in keeping with her former life. She had kept quiet for her children's sake, and would now if it were not for the fact that her children were in danger of being taken away from her and placed in the care of a man whom she accuses of repeated acts of adultery with a woman known as Ida Campbell and with other women, whose names, Mrs. Napoleon says, are too numerous to mention in her affidavit. She alleges that it is necessary, in order to present her case properly before the court, that sufficient time be allowed her to procure certified copies of the records from Norfolk, Va., and Minneapolis, Minn.

Attorney Gilman opposed any continuation of the hearing. He said his client would admit everything which would be proved by the certified records, and wanted the case to be called up to-day. Judge Lichtenberg, however, said he would allow the case to go over until Monday, as the calendar would probably take up the entire time of the court to-day. As it has been admitted that the records would show that Cort was not married in Minneapolis, and that the woman was married in Norfolk before she met Cort, and has a husband living, the records need not be produced at the hearing.

Mrs. Napoleon also alleges that in 1882 Cort was married to a woman named Rice, from whom he did not secure a divorce until 1888. The divorce was obtained in Tacoma, and the records of the court show that at that time he was a resident of Pierce county. It is said there will be other developments of a very sensational character when the case is called for a hearing.

A Horrible Crime.

LONDON, June 19.—The inquest on the body of the little girl, Barbara Waterhouse, whose dismembered remains were found wrapped up in a bundle, near the town hall of Leeds, has developed some sensational evidence. Mrs. Cotterill, a lady who for seventeen years has been a friend of the Turner family, was the chief witness to-day. She testified that on the Wednesday after the murder was discovered, Mrs. Turner, mother of the man accused of the crime, came to her house in a greatly excited condition, and made the following statement: He arose Sunday morning and kindled the fire, which he was not in the habit of doing. He then filled the coal box with enough fuel to last all day. This done, he drew the sofa to the door leading to the coal cellar, and lay on it all day, glaring and gnashing his teeth, and occasionally peering into the cellar. On Monday morning, the mother arose early and went into the cellar. Her son was up. She found a bundle there and, on touching it, discovered that it contained a human body. Her shrieks brought her son hurriedly to the spot. He was furious and seized his mother roughly and shook her fiercely. She saw that he looked and acted like a maniac, and she was afraid he would kill her. She begged him to spare her life. Finally he grew somewhat calmer, and she fell on her knees and sought him to tell her the contents of the bundle and explain the mystery. This he suddenly refused to do, but later he confessed that he had committed the murder, and showed her the corpse of the little girl. He then made his mother swear to say nothing about the matter, and to help him dispose of the corpse. The body began to be offensive, and Mrs. Turner brought some chloride of lime and sprinkled over it. Mother and son then placed the mutilated remains in a tin box, and at night conveyed the ghastly burden to the place where it was foun... Having told her story, Mrs. Turner implored her friend and benefactor, Mrs. Cotterill, to tell her what to do. Mrs. Cotterill insisted that she should inform the police of the facts, to which Mrs. Turner replied: "If it was a son of yours you would not advise his betrayal." After that Mrs. Cotterill wrote to the police anonymously. Since thas time the mother has partly confessed the facts, and her story agrees substantially with Mrs. Cotterill's testimony given to-day. The strangest feature of the case is that the actual place of murder has not yet been discovered. Young Turner will not reveal it, and his mother claims she is ignorant of it. The police think there is something being concealed by the woman and she is held as a prisoner with her son. Neither mother nor son was in court to-day. Turner is a workman and has hitherto had a good reputation.

FROM ALASKA.

The Queen Arrives at 6 O'clock Last Evening—A Delightful Trip.

The steamer Queen, Captain Carroll returned at 6 o'clock last evening from her trip to Alaska. Everyone on board spoke in glowing terms of the beauty of the trip and the courtesy of the officers of the floating palace.

William Moore, one of those who went up said the party aboard was one of the jolliest he had ever traveled with and the weather was delightful. He, like the rest of the passengers, went into ecstasies over the Muir glazier. The falling ice, said Mr. Moore, sounded like the booming of a thousand cannons.

The passengers landed at the Douglas Island mine a d saw the 240 stamp mill in operation. It is proving very satisfactory and is undoubtedly the best one on the globe. Mining prospects are all very fair throughout the territory.

She brought the particulars of the drowning of Lieut. Robinson and Mr. Moore, of the Russell party, and four seamen of the Bear. They were trying to land the explorers in Icy Bay through a very heavy surf which swamped them. A boat was sent out from the Bear but too late to do any good.

She leaves for Alaska again on Monday.

Lopatecki's Luck.

TACOMA, June 19.—Two months ago a young Russian named Lopatecki announced that he had fallen heir to $10,000,000 by the death of his sister's husband, the Duke of Fedorowitz, in Poland. Owing to his opposition to the policy of the Russian government, Lopatecki found that he could not obtain possession of the dowery. He has learned, however, that he can secure $2,500,000 of the duke's estate, which is deposited in the Bank of England, and that he can obtain possession of it. He will proceed to Washington City in a few days to consult with the Russian minister there, and may go to England, but he says he will always make Tacoma or Victoria, where he formerly resided, his permanent residence. He is in receipt of many letters soliciting financial aid, one coming from a Seattle woman, who also enquires if Lopatecki does not want a handsome housekeeper.

Bunkoing Statesmen.

BALTIMORE, June 18.—William K. Duval, the young man who distinished himself recently by naming a fictitious brood of young Duvals after various Senators and representatives in Congress, securing many presents, pleaded guilty in the criminal court to three cases of false pretenses, and was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary in each case.

Two Years Ago.

Two years ago I was troubled with an ulcer on my ankle, and having used B. B. B. for bad blood, I procured a bottle and a box of Burdock Healing Ointment. After using three bottles and three boxes I was completely cured. Mrs. Mm. V. Boyd, Brantford, Ont.

3 PRACTICAL POINTS

One of the most successful German physicians gave as the secret of his wonderful success these three important points:—

1. Keep the Head Cool.
2. Keep the Bowels Open.
3. Keep the Feet Warm.

These conditions are not so easily obtained as one would think. Why? Because without pure and healthy blood a vigorous circulation cannot be kept up, and because the food and occupation of most people tends to clog up the bowels and produce constipation. The success of B. B. B., like that of the German physician, lies in so purifying the blood and regulating the bowels, liver and stomach, that these three conditions are fulfilled easily, and disease can find no lodgment in the body.

THE BEST SPRING MEDICINE.

B B B

This medicine does purify the blood and cure all diseases arising from impure or unhealthy blood. It does regulate the entire system and cure constipation, dyspepsia, biliousness, sick headache, scrofula, skin diseases, rheumatism, and all disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. During the past ten years over one million bottles have been sold in Canada, and, although we guarantee every bottle to do all we claim, we have not received a single complaint.

Interesting Items From Donald and Field---Land Slides.

From Our Own Correspondent.

DONALD, B.C.—On the night of the 9th about 1 o'clock Constable Harold Redgrave, arrested Frank Wilson, Sam Taylor, George Wilson and John Riley, for breaking into Mr. Thos. Evan's barber shop.

Seven tramps were up before A. P. Cummins, S.M., charged with breaking into a barber shop at Donald. Constable Redgrave gave evidence that he arrested them last night, and found in their possession one lamp, one pair of scissors and a key, and that they had been around town for two or three days begging. Mr. Thos. Evans, J.P., swore his barber shop had been broken open and that the lamp and scissors were his property that had been stolen from him, and that the key found on Riley was the shop key. They were sentenced to eight days' hard labor.

Hon. Judge Walkem held County Court on the 15th, and left on No. 1 train going west on the 18th.

Dr. Campbell went over to Mr. R. A. Kimpton's house, and before he left handed over to the father a bouncing baby boy.

Very warm and sultry on the 17th, about 3 o'clock p.m., a thunder storm came on and lasted for an hour or two with heavy rain, which brought down two land slides, one west of Golden and one west of Field. No. 2 ran into the one about 7 miles west of Golden and was delayed for an hour, and was also delayed at Field for an hour.

FIELD, B.C., June17.—Mr. M. Carlin has bought out George Stark, Monarch Hotel at Field.

GOLDEN, B.C., June 17.—Mr. Miller, formerly of Beaver, has bought the Golden saloon from Jno. W. Connor of Golden.

Messrs. Harvey, Durrick and Gibson, were elected school trustees for Golden by acclamation. Two or three kicked, but 37 out of 41 votes—wants to know where the kick comes in.

Miss Maggie Connacher has arrived home from Kamloops.

THE CANADIAN PACIFIC.

A Londoner's Opinion---Everything in a Very Satisfactory State.

London Truth of the 4th inst. says: Canadian Pacific shares again touched 80 last week, and only receded in sympathy with the general dulness of the American market. The April statement of the company was, in fact, most favorable. The stockholders held their annual meeting on May 18, and the net profits for the year were shown to be $6,299,700. The usual supplementary dividends of 1 per cent. per half year were paid, making 2 per cent. out of earnings and 3 per cent. from the annuity for the year. The surplus net profits from this and previous years carried forward to income account amounted at January 1 to $2,656,432. The directors consider that when the annuity ceases, in 1893, the net earnings of the road will be quite sufficient to keep up a 5 per cent. dividend, while the net profits for the first four months of this year already amount to $550,000 more than for the same period of last year. From a reliable source I have the following:—Everything relating to Canadian Pacific is in a most satisfactory shape. There is only one outstanding matter of any great consequence, and that is the British Columbia arbitration, which drags along slowly. The wheat is well up all over the Northwest, and is looking magnificently—in fact, better than it has ever been seen before at this season. The past seven or eight years have been rather on the dry side, but the long continued and heavy rains of last autumn have thoroughly saturated the soil all the way from the Red River to the mountains, and the beds of the old lakes and ponds which have long been dried up are all standing full of water. There is a good deal of activity in British Columbia, both in mining and timber-cutting, and everywhere on the line local industries are prospering. The forecast of $20,000,000 gross and $8,000,000 net for this year are likely to be fulfilled. I also hear that the first steamship, the Empress of India, did very well on her trip from England to Vancouver, the gross earnings being something over £30,000. As there is nothing on the Pacific to remotely compare with these new steamships of the C.P.R., it is believed that they will secure the bulk of the trans-Pacific passenger business, and a large share of the China and Japan business that now goes by way of the Suez Canal. The present prospects of the Canadian Pacific thus justify a much higher price than that of to-day of 78¾. The position of the Grand Trunk, on the other hand, is by no means promising, and the last measure of a general reduction of salaries is, after all, only a drop in the ocean.

A Pastor and His Vacation.

A well known pastor of an evangelical church not a hundred miles from Montreal, for years has had the privilege of taking a summer vacation. Last summer as vacation time was coming on he found that owing to overwork in connection with his fast increasing congregation, and a too close application to study, his nerves had become weak and unsteady; his hand trembled somewhat, and his bodily strength had failed. Owing to these troubles his rest at night was not as natural and refreshing as it once was.

Hearing of Paine's Celery Compound through one of his church elders, he commenced its use, and by the time his vacation term came on, he was in every way fitted to visit the home of his boyhood in the West, and thoroughly enjoy with his family his vacation of a month.

Paine's Celery Compound should be used by all at this season when they feel out-of-sorts; it tones up and revives the weak and languid, and gives to the ailing one a vim, energy and freshness of life that nothing else can give.

We would recommend its use to all ministers and pastors in Canada, especially when they are overworked, and study too much.

Alberni News.

Mr. G. A. Huff, of Alberni, arrived in the city yesterday. He reports the crops there in good condition, and the settlers hopeful.

At the school meeting on the 15th inst., Henry Hills was elected school trustee, vice M. M. Sarcult, whose term had expired. Votes of thanks were passed to Messrs. Sarcult and Huff for their exertions on behalf of education.

A four-year old child of Mrs. Sells died a few days ago.

The Maude will make a trip to Alberni in a few days, and will carry a fair amount of cargo

The Alberni Postmastership.

Our attention has been called to a letter signed "Albernian" which appeared in the TIMES about a month ago, and which reflected upon a resident of Alberni, who was said to aspire to the position of postmaster. It was stated that the gentleman referred to had solicited signatures to a petition in his own behalf, etc. We are creditably informed that the statements in the letter were untrue, and being so, it was a mistake to write them, as it certainly was an oversight to print them.

THE CRY OF MILLIONS
OH, MY BACK!
STOP IT NOW,
SOON IT WILL BE TOO LATE.
I have been troubled many years with disease of the kidneys and have tried many different remedies and have sought aid from different physicians without relief. About the 15th of April I was suffering from a very violent attack that almost prostrated me in such a manner that I was bent over. When I sat down it was almost impossible for me to get up alone, or to put on my clothes, when kind Providence sent Dr. Henley, with the OREGON KIDNEY TEA, to my hotel. I immediately commenced using the tea. It had an almost miraculous effect, and to the astonishment of all the guests at the hotel, in a few days I am happy to state, that I was a new man. I will recommend the tea to all afflicted as I have been.

NEW POLICE MAGISTRATE.

The City Council, at a meeting last evening, appointed a Police Magistrate. Mr. A. L. BELYEA, of the legal firm of BELYEA & GREGORY, was chosen and will enter upon his duties as soon as his commission as a Justice of the Peace is signed by the Lieut.-Governor. The salary attached to the position is $2400 per annum, a sum which will be regarded as a fair, but not an excessive, remuneration for the services rendered. Judge BELYEA is a young man of excellent private character and a lawyer of good standing. He ought to, and we believe he will, when "sitting in judgment" at the police court keep the wavering scales of justice always well adjusted.

TUPPER.

Principal GRANT's championship of Sir CHARLES TUPPER seems to have taken Canada by surprise. A man of parts, of an analytical turn and very much inclined to study things from their ethical side, Canadians very naturally supposed that Principal GRANT and Tupperism were incompatible. But is Principal GRANT altogether wrong? Not in politics, and independent of it, may we not suppose that he is better qualified to pass on Tupperism than a partisan press? The TIMES is inclined to look askance at Sir CHARLES and his methods, but it must admit that his robust partisanship is not wholly to his disadvantage as a Conservative leader.

Sir CHARLES' vigor largely contributed to the success of the late Dominion election. A bold, vigorous though bad man during such seasons is more valuable than the cold logician. People love energy; it enthuses, is a tonic to the weak and wavering. Logically prize fighting cannot be defended, but the knight of the prize ring never fails to draw an admiring crowd. Sir CHARLES is this kind of man, and it cannot be doubted that he contributed immensely to Sir JOHN's success. But this much granted, can we grant any more? With all due deference to Principal GRANT, we cannot agree with him that Sir CHARLES is the man to lead Canadian Tories. Toryism in Canada is made up of discordant elements, and moreover is on the wane. Sir JOHN was essentially a builder, but despite the fabric he had reared, it was beginning to totter. Sir CHARLES is not a builder, nor does he possess the infinite tact and fund of resourse that distinguished Sir JOHN. It is doubtful if Sir CHARLES is a good organizer. Give him political forces already organized and doubtless he would be able to lead them, but Sir CHARLES' is not a personality to rejuvenate a party already tottering to its fall. The Tories had better let Sir CHARLES remain where he is, and use him only on political occasions as an auxiliary force. On the stump Sir CHARLES is useful. He will also be useful next October at Washington. There, giving rein somewhat to his free trade proclivities, he will complete the downfall of National Policy.

TORY STUPIDITY.

The average British Tory politician is neither prudent nor tactful, nor apparently blessed with a keen sense of the humane. In the debate on the Buxton amendment to the Factory Bill, which prohibits the employment of children under eleven years of age, the Tories opposed it almost solidly. The amendment was only carried by six votes. The smallness of the majority speaks badly for Tory tact and humanity, and it might be added, utter inability to fall in line with public opinion. Public opinion, where the English tongue is spoken, is decidedly opposed to child labor. In England, indeed, it could scarcely be otherwise, else it would have to be inferred that English sympathy for Russian Jews was a spurious article. True humanity knows neither race, color nor previous condition of servitude. Humanity, like politeness, unless it begins at home, might well excite adverse criticism. Except that England manifested serious concern for her own people, the Czar might well retort that her sympathy for the Jews smacked of phariseeism. The tactlessness and want of humanity evinced by the Tories in respect of local concerns augurs the early downfall of the Salisbury regime. The English press is particularly severe in its comments on the attitude of the Tories as to the BUXTON amendment. The News declares the blow to be both "damaging and ignominious, and not even the resignation of Home Secretary MATHEWS will save the Government from discredit and disgrace." The Chronicle describes MATHEWS as a "costly luxury to the State," and affirms that the defeat of the Government will seriously damage the prospects of every Unionist candidate in the next general election. The Times puts it that the attitude of the Ministers was "unnecessary, injudicious, and not altogether straightforward. The rejection of the amendment after our action at the Berlin conference would have exposed us to the odium of the world as a nation of Pharisees." Such being the tenor of the English press, it is easy to see that the Tories have hurt themselves. A party that has neither tact nor humanity, and whose cupidity is stronger than its prudence, does not deserve success.

CANADA'S PROSPERITY.

In declaring that Canada was never more prosperous than at present we are paying National Policy a compliment, says our contemporary, the Colonist. If the Colonist wishes to so construe it we cannot help it, but our idea is that Canada has prospered in spite of National Policy, just the same as the United States has prospered in spite of protection, just the same as France has prospered in spite of her misfortunes and her immense preparations for war. It is indeed possible for a Government to ruin a country, but we never knew a case of it. Given half a chance a country will prosper in spite of a bad Government. And this has been the case with Canada. Coincident with the war of the rebellion, Canada began to prosper. The market she established in the States at that time has continued without interruption since. The development of the cities in the Eastern and Middle States furnished Canada with a market, just as England and Europe generally have furnished the Western States with a market for wheat and other farm products. In the circumstances National Policy could not prevent Canada's prosperity. But what would have been the result had complete reciprocity been in operation between the United States and Canada? May we suppose there would have been so large an exodus to the States? May we not suppose that the Northwest would have contained a larger population? We are bound to presume so. Could Canada have had an unrestricted market in the States all the years since 1866, her farming population would now be richer, and in the very nature of things local manufacturing industries would have sprung into existance.

Saying that Canada was never more prosperous than at present, does not imply that she is as prosperous as she might have been had a different policy prevailed.

But we were speaking of the "deluge," which to the Tory mind appears imminent. Now a deluge of the kind apprehended by the Tory mind must have a cause for it, and what can that cause be except some desperate condition? We hold that that desperate condition does not exist, not that N. P. must be given any credit for it, but for the reasons we have just given—Canada has prospered in spite of it. This harping on and fear of the deluge does not speak well for the Tory conscience. If they were satisfied with their policy, if they were sure in their own minds that their's had been the best possible policy, they would not apprehend a deluge. It is consciousness of guilt that makes them fearful, not exactly for Canada but for themselves.

But the question in Canadian affairs is not of the present but of the future. The United States have adopted a national policy which requires of Canada, if she would continue to deal with that country, greater sacrifices than has hitherto been the case. Will Canada continue to be prosperous with a condition of this kind prevailing? This is the deluge we apprehend.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

"It is admitted on all sides that the outlook for McGREEVY's case is bad."—Colonist's Ottawa Correspondent.

The Colonist's correspondent at Ottawa says that TARTE and JONCAS, who were elected as Independents, have formally cast their lot with the Opposition. After the election, the Colonist claimed these two representatives as supporters of the Government. It will be in order, therefore, for the organ to revise its slate in regard to the strength of the two parties.

Lord DUNLO will not make his debut in the House of Lords until after his wife's theatrical engagement expires. Lord DUNLO has been badly advised. He is showing more deference for the feelings of his lordly colleagues than for his wife's. In abstaining from the performance of his hereditary functions until his wife's theatrical engagements expire he gives prominence to the mesalliance he has made, and, as it were, gives it official recognition. Lord DUNLO ought not to defer his entrance to the House of Lords on account of his wife. When she has finished her theatrical engagement will she be any less plebian than she is at present?

There were only three names proposed in connection with the police magistracy, all lawyers. The salaries varied from $1800 to $3000, and the council chose the "happy medium," or "struck an average," and appointed Mr. BELYEA at $2400. The TIMES would have been pleased had Hon. A. N. RICHARDS received the appointment, because, in its opinion, there is no man in the city better qualified for the position; but the majority of the council rules, and in this instance, the vote is said to have been unanimous. Judge BELYEA enters upon the discharge of his duties with the good wishes of many friends. After he has been a judge for a year or two, and has enforced the law against misdemeanants and evil-doers, generally, he will, we hope, be still more respected.

LABOUCHERE, writing about "My Lord Mount STEPHEN," says: "The advocates of that silly craze, Imperial Federation, are in ecstasies over Sir GEORGE STEPHEN being made a peer, because he is a colonial. In the colonies, however, a man is politically lost if he accepts even a knighthood. If Sir GEORGE had received a life peerage it would not have increased his popularity in the colonies, for Australians and Canadians and New Zealanders regard a House of Lords not more favorably than I do. To give him a hereditary peerage, is a still greater absurdity. He will reside in England; his son (if he has one) will also reside here. What possible advantage is it to Canada that this son should be an hereditary legislator here? Let us hope, therefore, that before Sir GEORGE reverts to dust hereditary legislators will be a thing of the past." As there is no son, there is no prospect of a hereditary Canadian peer of the name of Mount STEPHEN. It will be a good thing for Canada, if in future appointments equal care is taken to select a childless man, for then the species will not take long to become extinct.

The Next Advance in Telescope Making.

Why, asks the Pall Mall Budget, is it so difficult and expensive to construct an immense telescope? From the time of Galileo to that of Clark, steady work has been done, and each step has given us a larger object glass. The pupil of the eye is one-fifth of an inch in diameter, and can grasp but a limited amount of light. A 25 inch object glass will enable the eye to take in over 15,000 times more light, and with such a glass the moon can be seen as though it were only 80 miles away; but if the size of the object glass could be further increased, the moon would be brought considerably nearer. To make a large object glass is the difficulty, and it is only after years of patient work of the most skilled men on earth and after repeated attempts that one can be produced which is accurate. Slight differences of specific gravity, changes of structure due to jarring, strains resulting from unequal pressure and changes of temperature, are all capable of ruining the work. Some one who is anxious to anticipate events has asked: Why not replace the glass, which is only a medium transmitting light at a different velocity from air, by a properly constructed electric field? It is conceivable that an electric field 50 feet in diameter could be arranged. Just what the nature of this field shoul be with our present knowledge, we cannot say, but some day it will be known, and the secrets of the other planets will be ours. Ether (says a technical paper) is now paramount with experimentalists; some day it will form the basis of all electrical text books. We seem to be on the verge of discovering something really great in the world of ether. The early experiments of Faraday, the marvelous mathematical researches of Maxwell, and the crownin experiments of Hertz, all show the intimate relations which exist between electricity and light. They have so entirely changed our views of science that it has been truly said that electricity has annexed the whole domain of optics.

Presentation.

During the evening, the members of the choir presented a handsome silver goblet to Mr. and Mrs. Gold, as a token of their esteem and in commemoration of their recent marriage. A very pleasant evening was spent.

Chasing a Coon.

A party of about 20 Chinamen amused a like number of whites this morning by their frantic efforts to catch a raccoon that was climbing around a lot of fruit trees between Johnson and Cormorant streets. The Chinamen would succeed in knocking the scared animal to the ground, and then would run as for their lives. The circus lasted about an hour, the coon finally getting away.

A Sure Thing.

The newspapers at present contain many references to the striking feats of the prominent players in the different baseball leagues. One of the players in the Seattle team was particularly mentioned the other day as having made a fine catch of a fly, in a game with Spokane. Baseball players and all others should remember, especially at this season that to "catch flies" nothing is equal to "Tanglefoot" fly paper to be obtained from Cochrane & Munn, druggists, corner Yates and Douglas streets.

More About the Otto.

The schooner Otto which arrived yesterday from Halifax, is now anchored in James Bay. On Monday the crew will be paid off and discharged and then Capt. McLeod will turn her over to her owners and start back east overland. He was only employed to bring the schooner out here and if her owners determine to send her north this season Mate Reilly will go as her master. The Patagonian boy that Captain McLeod picked up in the Straits of Magellan has become so much attached to him that Capt. McLeod has concluded to take him back to Halifax with him.

From Sitka to Sand Point.

In anticipation of Sand Point, Alaska, being the rendezvous of the British and United States revenue cutters this summer while they are patrolling Behring Sea, the United States government has started a monthly mail service between Sitka and Sand Point. The service will begin on July 1 and will leave Sitka thereafter the first of every month and continue for seven months at least, and longer if it is found necessary. This new route has long been needed and will be a great convenience not only to the government vessels, but also as a means of the sealers that may touch Sand Point communicating with their friends and sending their version of how matters stand in Behring Sea.

Biters and Bit Both Gone.

The absence of Anderson and Loomis from the Provincial police court this morning when their cases were called, practically amounted to their pleading guilty to the charge against them. They are the two men who were charged with swindling a Dane out of $170 a few days ago. When the case was called on Thursday last the Dane was not to be found so the case was remanded until this morning and the two men released on their own recognizance. The Dane was not present either this morning and if the two men had been present the charge against them would necessarily have had to have been dismissed. As they did not appear E. Johnson, S. M., ordered that warrants issue for their arrest which will prevent them ever setting foot in Victoria again without being liable to arrest.

Sir John A. Macdonald.

The issue of the Dominion Illustrated for the 20 inst. will be devoted almost exclusively to an account, with full illustrations, of the event which is in all men's minds, the funeral of the dead premier, Sir John A. Macdonald. No such outburst of popular sorrow over the death of any man has ever been evoked in Canada, as that which pays tribute to the greatness of the deceased statesman. The Dominion Illustrated sent its own photographers and artist to Ottawa and Kingston, and the number to be issued on the 20th inst. will be a memorial worthy of the occasion, and one that throughout Canada will be preserved as a sad souvenir of the man whose death has left so great a void in the hearts of the people as well as in the public life of the country he has served so long and so devotedly.

Bermudez Gets Four Years.

Ed. Bermudez, who plead guilty to burglary yesterday, appeared before Mr. Justice Crease in the Speedy Trial Court this morning for sentence. His Lordship went over the facts of the case, pointing out how the crime had been committed, how the guilty party had been speedily arrested through the sagacity of Sargeant Walker, and how the law looked upon the offence as one of the greatest in which the extreme penalty was imprisonment for life. Bermudez was then asked if he had anything to say in mitigation of the sentence to be imposed upon him. Bermudez broke down entirely, and with a husky voice and tears rolling down his cheeks told how this was his first crime and that he had been led into it by one Thomas Sargeant after Sargeant had got him intoxicated, and that Sargeant had taken nearly all the proceeds of the burglary. His Lordship then pronounced the sentence to be four years imprisonment at hard labor.

Had Spoiled a Suicide.

"Give me a knife, let me cut this rope from around my neck and I will then plunge it into my heart, then they can't catch me." So raved a crazy Frenchman in the city lock-up this morning. Who he is, where he came from or what caused his brain lobes to become disarranged is not known by the police. Early this morning officer Smith's attention was directed by the cries of a man in the mud flats under James Bay bridge and he ran to his assistance. After much difficulty he extricated the man from the mud and pulled him ashore, when he found that the man was out of his head and thought that he had been drowned. He was taken to the police lock-up and medical assistance furnished him, but he is very violent and will have to be taken to an asylum. It was learned that the man was seen to run out on the bridge screaming and jumping on the rail and with a heart rendering yell threw himself into what he evidently thought was water, but the tide was low and he lit in the soft mud. He is a man about 30 years of age, 5 feet 6 inches tall and has gray hair and moustache. He is evidently French, because in his ravings he often stops talking English and prays in French for some one to kill him. If he has any friends in the city they should look after him at once, as the physician attending him states that in his present condition he may die any moment.

WILL EXTEND THEIR LINES.

An Important Meeting of the Directors of the N.E.T. Co. Held Last Evening.

Since the cars of the N. E. Tramway Company first started out from Rock Bay bridge, on the day the line was opened, their usefulness has steadily grown, and of course the enterprising company has steadily prospered. The meeting of the directors held last evening plainly showed this by the large amount of work they did, and the important business that was transacted. Hon. D. W. Higgins, president of the company, occupied the chair. The question of extending the company's Fort street line to the Victoria Driving Park and exhibition grounds was first taken up. The directors decided not to accept the subsidy offered by the B. C. Agricultural Society for extending the line, as it is so hedged in by a condition that they were of opinion that it would be impossible to build the line as proposed by the society. The company will, however, have the line surveyed immediately, and it is more than probable that the cars will be running by the time the exhibition opens.

It was decided to call for tenders for 200 tons of girders for tracks inside the city, 300 tons of tee rails for the country lines.

The project of the company to lay double tracks throughout the city has been met with a request from the sewerage engineer to refrain from doing the work until the sewers are completed, as the line would greatly impede the work of the sewerage contractor.

The company although recognizing the importance of laying double tracks decided to accede to the request. Arrangements will be made nevertheless, to run the cars more frequently by putting down sidings.

It is the intention of the company to increase their carrying capacity by one-third and with that object in view a number of new motors and new cars will be ordered immediately. The lines will also be extended in the country, but not until next spring, by which time the new rails for which tenders are to be called will have arrived.

The last rail on the Oak Bay extension will be laid this evening, and already workmen are beginning to tramp the line. It will be in operation by the 1st of July, about the beginning of the holidays, so Oak Bay will soon be enlivened by the presence of picnic parties.

The meeting was a very successful one and the directors were much pleased at the splendid reports of the working of the line.

A SPLENDID PROPOSAL.

An Important Matter Now Being Considered by the Superintendent of Telegraphs.

F. W. Elworthy, secretary of the B. C. Board of Trade, has received a letter from Wm. Smith, of the Marine Department, Ottawa, acknowledging the receipt of the Board's letter asking that the operator at Bonilla Point be ordered to wire information in reference to vessels and the state of the weather at the cape to some point in Victoria. The Board proposed the telegraph office as a place where the information might be posted up, at noon and at 6 p.m., and if possible more frequently.

Mr. Smith said the matter was under the consideration of the superintendent of the government telegraph lines and would receive attention.

If carried out the scheme would be a boon to all, but principally the pilots and stevedores, who could then always be on hand and not have to lay out in their boats all night waiting to sight a steamer.

A LADY'S LETTER TO LADIES.

Household Novelties and Ornaments—Latest Fashions in Dress, etc.

Owing to the cold and fickle weather which has prevailed of late, few novelties in the shape of fire-screens and stove ornaments are to be seen exhibited in our stores, although no doubt later on we shall see a large variety. Some of the prettiest Japanese screens and fans are covered with quaint designs, elaborately embroidered in differently colored silk and gold or silver tinsel whilst others are ornamented with dainty sprays of hand-painted flowers and brightly-hued birds. A novel fire place stand which I recently noticed, somewhat resembling an easel in shape, was effectively draped in soft silk, a large garden hat, adorned with a wreath of roses, being artistically hung in the centre, whilst at the back was a long shepherd's crook tied with bows of ribbon. Bamboo and basket work stands, with small colored pots for ferns or flowers, gracefully suspended from them by thin chains, have a most attractive appearance, and seem likely to be very much patronized this season.

The Medici shaped feather collar is quite the latest fashionable adornment for the neck for out-door wear. It is composed entirely of ostrich feathers and is becomingly lined with small tips which fall gracefully over the top of it, a smart bow of ribbon fastening the collar together in front.

Girdles of all descriptions still continue to be very much favored, quite the newest and handsomest being formed entirely of beautifully cut black jet, which presents a very effective appearance. Jet trimming and passementerie in various designs is also much worn on both dresses and mantles, some of the latter seeming to be almost covered with it.

Large flat leghorn hats are very fashionable for both children and young ladies, some of the prettiest being bordered round the rim with narrow feather edging, and trimmed simply with bows of ribbon. Feathers and tips seem likely to be quite as popular as flowers this season for millinery purposes. Large chip hats in all shades, both light and dark, are very much worn just at present. Jet or gold butterflies and dragonflies are a very favorite ornaments for either bonnets or hats. Some of the newest black or white tulle for veils is lightly sprinkled over with gold chenille designs, and the effect being exceedingly bright and attractive.

Some of the most stylish soft silk blouse bodices are bordered round the basque with a deep frill or flounces of the same material. Quite the most uncommon-looking blouses are composed entirely of narrow stripes of velvet and insertion, the pointed belts being of the same to correspond. Many jersey bodices for summer wear have collars, cuffs and V shaped vests of soft silk, which is usually finely tucked or gathered, whilst others are elaborately embroidered or braided in numerous colors and designs.

Black net seems likely to be worn considerably for dresses this summer, some of the prettiest being covered with chenille or velvet, spots, crescents or true ewers kuts. Fancy striped grenadine and black foulard, the latter being usually ornamented with large bright yellow or gold floral designs, will also be very fashionable. Embroidered materials of all descriptions will be immensely favored later on.

Some of the lightest and daintiest of underskirts are composed of delicately-tinted cambric or zephyr, and are bordered round the hem with deep frills of either embroidery or the same material. All the newest white skirts are profusely adorned with torchon lace flounces and bands or broad insertion to correspond. Torchon lace will also be very much used for trimming young ladies' and childrens' cotton costumes.

Suide gloves in all shades still continue to be by far the most popular, many of them being prettily stitched in either a corresponding or contrasting color. Gauntlet gloves are still very fashionable, some of the smartest being beautifully embroidered with gold, silver, jet or steel bands. Quite the newest suide gloves are in all shades of heliotrope, their appearance, as may be imagined, being charming.

THE BRITISH POACHER.

HIS INGENIOUS SCHEMES FOR CAPTURING GAME.

How He Eludes the Gamekeeper and Bothers the Landlords—Wakeman's Description of their Haunts and Depredations Among Birds and Fish.

[Special Correspondence of the TIMES.]

CARLISLE, England, June 8.—My first introduction to a British poacher was in the ancient city of Galway on a summer's morning in 1888. I wandered out of Elie Madigan's quaint little inn before sunrise, and after a few moments on the quay among the fishwives of Claddagh had started for a stroll out Oughterard way. As I was crossing Queen's bridge my attention was attracted by hundreds upon hundreds of salmon in the shallow waters of the Corrib beneath. They lay, bunched in groups of scores and more, in little pockety pools of the greatest depth, their noses pointing up stream, but all the shoals apparently as motionless as the rocky bed of the river beneath them. It was early for Galway, save at the Claddagh side, as the sleepy old town is hardly astir before 9 o'clock. But I had stood there scarcely a minute when a man in corduroy, highlows, jockey cap and visor, and bearing a huge club in his hand, approached me from the city side. He gave me a sharp look of scrutiny, touched his hat apologetically and walked smartly away. He was one of the royal fishery board water bailiffs, and was in quest of salmon poachers.

He was hardly out of sight before a barefooted man followed upon the bridge. He in turn scrutinized me closely and passed. A moment later the man's arm slid along the waist high stone coping of the bridge. Then there was a gentle splash in the water below. The man kept straight on, increasing the speed of his walk. Directly I saw his arm jerked back, as if by a sudden grasp from the bridge side over the coping. Then he seemed to exert very great strength, while there was some little commotion in the stream beneath. When near the end of the bridge he turned, put his elbows upon the coping in an attitude of contemplation, and waited thus for a few minutes. Finally he passed off the bridge end and turned toward the bay. Without seeming to watch him, I soon saw him reappear near an old fulling mill several rods below.

With him there was now a mangy headed lad, who was hastily unrolling the bottoms of his trousers with one hand, while carrying his jacket in a singularly heavy and baggy way with the other. The barefooted man had within three minutes' time captured two huge salmon with a murderous "drag hook" armed with six huge hooks; and the lad with the pouchy jacket, who had rejoined him, was in waiting beneath the bridge end to care for fish, hooks and line. In fifteen minutes more the two salmon were dressed and in the "herring skits" of the fishwives, being hawked about the city; and the Corrib poacher had secured eight shillings for his deft morning's work.

My next experience was while a guest during a pheasant shoot on the demesne of a young nobleman in one of the English midland counties. Some time during the day's murderous onslaught upon the birds I had lost a diminutive, but to me valuable notebook. It so worried me that I arose the next morning, dressed and stole down into and out of the castle yard through the huge open gate facing the side next the demesne, before a soul was astir about the entire place. I felt sure of my ability to discover the locality of the previous day's battue by following to the right the demesne wall, which must lead to the little patch of low open copse where the pheasants had been driven by the "beating" of the attendants, a number of whom, noted for their woodcraft, and who were loungers at the near village, had been pressed into service. The wall surrounding the demesne was of rough stone and nibble, conical at the top, its crest being rendered seemingly impassable by murderous pieces of broken glass imbedded in the mortar. It was hardly daylight, and a thick mist rendered ordinary objects still more indistinct. I therefore simply followed the wall closely, now and then touching it with a stout walking stick I had taken with me from my chamber, but oftener touching it gently at intervals with my hand.

I was not long in passing the line of heavier forest and reaching the open place where I felt sure the previous day's slaughter of pheasants had occurred; and just as my hand left the wall, following my impulse of search over the shooting ground, my fingers came in contact with the bushy hair of a man's head. I am not exactly an athlete, but that hair and the man under it came up alongside of that demesne wall to nearly my own height, as the Germans say, "im augenblick!" and I instantly saw I had taken, red handed, a fine specimen of the English poacher. The fact was all the more interesting as I recognized in the precious rascal one of the "beaters" employed by milord's gamekeepers during the previous day's sport. He was a handsome, dirty, chunky fellow of twenty or thereabouts, and he knew how to beg as well as poach.

It occurred to me I could utilize this particular "misplaced matter" both on the lines of acquiring information and in the recovery of my notebook. A proper compact had no sooner been agreed upon than two of the poacher's companions, agreeable to his signal, appeared. One was a weazened old man, spry as a cricket, and the other was a lad of perhaps fifteen years. The latter at once produced what I had made my quest for, and got a half crown for his trouble. Then in a few moments' hasty explanation I secured a good idea of what had been going on in that quarter during the night.

All three had been employed by the gamekeepers the previous day as "beaters" and "helpers," the latter to watch for the falling birds and carry them back to "the bags." A large number were thus stowed away in secure coverts for the following night's work. The poachers well knew that after the evening's tips, beer, pipes and boastful stories in the servants' hall and harness room, every gamekeeper would sleep soundly that night if not another in the year. They were therefore over the demesne wall and at work long before midnight. Their outfit was simple and inexpensive. A strong rope about twelve feet long with triple nooses, one in the middle well bound for securing a fastening on the jagged wall coping, and another at each end, answering for a ladder. A hand cart, the wheels wound with straw and rags to prevent noise and lessen the trail, with a fourth man beside it as a sentinel, was brought along for carrying away the plunder.

The three who entered the grounds had long, lithe poles, each a "bull's-eye" lantern, and between them sulphur or some such stuff and matches for making smudges. They knew every inch of ground "beaten" the day before, and also that the clamor and fright had broken up the rucks or covers into detached files of pheasants, and that these would retreat as high as possible among the branches of larch and fir. The fog, too, was in their favor. All night long they had methodically hunted out certain trees, discovered the pheasants within them, smudged them into half insensibility and deliberately knocked them from their perches, dispatching them the moment they fell by sinking their beastly thumbs in the brain of the befuddled birds. The work of gathering those which had been stolen from the "bag" the previous day was left until the break of day, and was just about completed as I had come upon the scene. Dozens went over the wall into the waiting cart in the few minutes of my investigation. The poles, the lad, and the little old man followed.

As the burly fellow I had caught followed these, and he was still astride the wall, where he had pounded the glass away and daubed a covering of hard clay, I asked him how many they had probably taken. "Hus doan't rightly know," was his modest and hoarsely whispered rejoinder; "'likes there be nigh onto forty brace!" Then pulling his forelock and winking wisely he disappeared. The noosed rope slid gently after him, and I heard the swishy sound of the straw wrapped wheels grow fainter, and finally silent, as I set out on my return to the castle the way I come.

Few people in America, or for that matter here, have any adequate idea of the tremendous sums annually expended in the preservation and taking of game in England, Ireland and Scotland. On a former occasion I had need to secure the figures for Scotland alone. Hunting and fishing, with attendant expenses, annually cost British sportsmen in Scotland £30,000,000! What must the sum total consequently be for the three kingdoms? Here, then, is at once found the real origin of poachers and poaching. Every Briton is a born sportsman. Hence with every square rod of ground under lease as a "shooting," and every lineal rod of shore, of beck, burn, river, loch or harbor under lease to somebody as a "fishing," millions are debarred by the severest game laws in the world from any use whatever of the rod and gun, save by stealth and illegally.

Low as is the scale of the professional poacher, it must not be supposed that he is a proscribed outlaw. British newspapers always discuss him from his humorous side. His vocation is everywhere known among villagers and countryside folk, and there are none so dastardly as to give him into the hands of officers. I personally know of many instances where poacher graduates have become gamekeepers. Other gamekeepers often seek their friendship rather than their enmity, thus reducing ravages to the lowest limit. And there are well authenticated cases where milord himself has hobnobbed with them for lessons in cunning and woodcraft. Two of the most noted and incorrigible of British poachers infest the lochs and deer forests in the vicinity of Fort William, Scotland. One is named Macewan, and the other, a confirmed tramp poacher, is known about the region of Loch Eil as "Drousy Mogins." Macewan seems unvanquishable.

In 1888 Lord Abinger, of Inverlochy House, obtained an interdict against him. He immediately secured its removal for £15, a part only of the proceeds of two days' shooting in Lord Abinger's preserves, since which time his operations have not been interfered with. His greatest revenues are, however, secured by night "sweeping" by seines of the pools of the river Lochy, hundreds of grilse or young salmon and some sea trout always being secured. "Drousy Mogins" is more of a poacher angler and less of a pirate. He wanders at will among the Grampian trout streams, supplying the tables of the nobility with the choicest trout from their own streams, and has been offered fabulous sums for a glimpse of his marvelous "flies." But a year since Lord Morton sent a young poacher resident on his Ardgour estate to Cameron of Loch Eil, begging him to employ him as a gillie in order to suppress his genius for poaching. An entire volume might be filled with similar incidents and illustrations.

Poaching is carried on among the vast deer forests and in stream and pool "sweeping" by net in a most lawless and defiant manner. It is simply impossible to provide sufficient gamekeepers and gillies to protect the forests from the inroads of poacher "stalkers," and the poachers of fish are so thoroughly organized, and in sudden conflicts with water bailiffs handle the latter so mercilessly, that the bailiffs usually seek seclusion rather than the marauders.

Genuine cunning, patience, with marvelous moor and woodcraft, are therefore more often found in those poachers who hang about the outskirts of well stocked "shootings" and preserves, alert as sparrow hawks or moor buzzards for poults of ever description which have market value. Pheasant and grouse poaching bring the most profitable returns. Aside from the night raids described above, the ingenious device is resorted to of fitting a game cock with artificial spurs, and stealthily placing him alongside the pheasant covert. The pugnacious pheasant cocks instantly respond to the game cock's crowing challenge, and often three or four brace of pheasants are thus taken.

Again in the highways near where pheasants are bred they may often be seen scratching and rolling in the dust of the road. The poacher provides himself with corn kernels into which short bristles have been inserted. These are greedily devoured, and the birds, choking to death in the hedges, are quickly and quietly dispatched. Grouse are taken by being shot from behind stone walls, an entire brood often being picked off at a time, if the poacher keeps himself out of sight; with the hair snares set on the moor hillocks, in the "runs" around them, and between the "rests" among the heather, and just before daybreak, by silk dragnets with glazed bottoms, on moors which are systematically burnt, an entire covey often being bagged at one sweep.

But the most detestable of all British poachers is that wholesale thief who rents for from twenty to eighty shillings, from some moorland farmer or yeoman, a tiny "hill shooting." He will see that it has a moorland stream and patches of sweet heather, and that it is sunny and sheltered. This is all that is required to comprise a favorite resort for moor game. It will also furnish a few hares and perhaps some black game among the bracken. To this spot covey after covey of moor birds will come for heather and water. They come in well defined flights, and alight in the very same place every morning. The poacher simply notes all these flights, courses, "dips" of flight and alighting grounds, and sets his flynets before day. They are heavy birds, fly straight and swift, and on striking the net become hopelessly entangled or drop stunned into the bag beneath. A poacher renting a "hillside shooting" at forty shillings will thus often, without discharging a gun, take more game than can be shown as bagged at the end of a shooting season on the largest and best conducted game preserves of Britain.

STRAITS OF MAGELLAN.

A DESCRIPTION OF THE STRAITS AND THE INHABITANTS.

Half Starved and Naked Patagonians—A Boy Sold for Three Plugs of Tobacco—Beautiful Surroundings—The Women of Patagonia and Their Charms.

By Captain H. H. McLeod, Schooner Otto.]

Any small vessel passing around Cape Horn from the Atlantic would pass through Magellan straits and avoid the storms of Cape Horn, but are deterred from using them hearing so many weird stories of man-eating Indians, no anchorage, no harbors, etc. I was rather prejudiced against them myself, but being short handed, having two men injured, I was rather afraid to face Cape Horn, and went through Magellan straits. A finer expanse of inland water I never sailed through. You enter the straits from Cape Virgin on the Atlantic side where there is a large red and white beacon about 60 feet high to guide you. From there to Sandy Point there are buoys and beacons to direct you; from Sandy Point west there are no buoys or beacons, in fact there are no banks or shoals. Fine bold water from shore to shore, good harbors about every ten miles and fine anchorage. There is plenty of fresh water to fill your casks. From Cape Virgin to Sandy Point the land is fertile and is all taken up for sheep ranches. At Cape Gregory I saw the finest mutton I ever set my eyes on. From Sandy Point west the mountains are barren with scarcely any vegetation.

In the western part of the straits there are plenty of Indians and such a naked half-starved looking lot of wretches I never saw in my life. I don't wonder that they eat men. If I was as hungry as them I would eat a crow. But I consider them quite harmless. I have had as many as 50 on board at once. Men, women and children all naked and begging for something to eat and clothing. I gave them all a good feed of oatmeal porridge and molasses and didn't they enjoy it. I also gave away all the old clothing I had.

Among the crowd was a smart looking young Indian who wanted to stay with me. His father was quite willing but wanted to sell him for tobacco. I asked him how much. He put up three fingers so I gave him three sticks of tobacco and took the boy and have him yet. Pardon the thought but the ladies of Magellan straits doserve honorable mention. They are rather robust and with true womanly dignity show their charms. They are as modest as any American lady at a full dress ball, in fact rather more so.

AN INTERESTING CHASE.

Capt. McLeod's Description of His Crew—What They Would Do Against a Ship.

Captain McLeod's own story of how a large four-masted ship ran away from him in the schooner Otto will prove interesting. It is as follows:

TO THE EDITOR.—Permit me through your columns to relate a most laughable incident that happened to me May 18, in lat. 2 N. long. 113.06 W. At 1 a.m. I sighted a large four-masted iron ship on the starboard bow. Not having sighted a ship since rounding Cape Horn, I was pleased to see him. He being to the windward I luffed about a point so as to cross him. About 2 p.m. when he saw me luffing he hauled his wind and ran away. He either took me for a pirate or a Yankee cutter coming to seize him for infringing on the rights of the Pacific Ocean. I chased him but night coming on I did not catch him. I ran up my signals at 5 p.m. but he would not give his name but answered that he was bound for San Francisco. He would not answer any other signals. Had enough of me, though; I was getting too familiar. Next morning saw him away to windward, must have steered awfully wild during the night or altered his course to get away from this piratical looking craft. If he only knew what a peaceable little crowd we were it would have saved him a very anxious afternoon.

He may see this letter so I will describe the crew of the pirate he ran away from. I have only one pirate on board but he is only what our cousins call a Behring Sea pirate. He is my first officer. John would kill a fur seal in the after cabin of the Rush, but otherwise a very peaceable citizen. One Irishman, two Dutchmen, one old Englishman who deserted some graveyard and got on board to get in other people's way, and a Patagonian boy whom I bought in Magellan from his father for three plugs of tobacco. Now, my friend, that is the crew of the awful pirate that you ran away from. You had enough lime juice on board to kill all the crew of this pirate in one drink.

Oh, forgive me, our cook! old Snanklehow. I almost forgot him, but I shouldn't as he is the most remarkable man of our ship's company. Does more growling than all hands combined.

Now, my friend, next time you come across a small schooner at sea don't run away from her as you will often find as good men on board a small craft as on a larger one, and when they get ashore may ridicule you for your ignorance and treat you with the contempt that you so richly deserve.

BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

The Port Angeles Delegates Have a Talk with the Council.

Ald. McKillican occupied the chair at a special meeting of the city council held last evening for the purpose of receiving a deputation from Port Angeles who came over to incorporate with Victoria to assist railway and other enterprises in which both cities were interested. The deputation consisted of Mr. Barrett of this city, Mayor Brumfield and Councillors Maloney, Foster and Lewis.

Mayor Brumfield spoke at some length upon the advantages of Port Angeles as the terminus of the transcontinental railroad and they asked the support of Victoria to obtain it. He explained the position of Port Angeles and the advantages it had to become a large city. He was sure that it would be to the advantage of both cities to have the terminus at Port Angeles. A daily steamer between the two cities would do for the present.

The aldermen were all of the opinion that the proposition of the deputation should be handed to them in writing so that they would be able to look into the matter. They did not think it was their work to aid a railway to be in Washington.

It was finally decided that the proposition would be handed to the council in writing at their next regular meeting.

NANAIMO NEWS.

Partnership Dissolved—Night Telegraph Service Wanted.

NANAIMO, June 20.—The firm of Young & Bickle, grocers, etc, have announced their intention of dissolving partnership and the business in future will be in the name of Young & Co. During the time these two industrious gentlemen have been in business they have succeeded in pushing their trade ahead, and it is not lauding them too much in saying that their business is done on a more extensive scale than any other in the city. Mr. Bickle will probably start a store in another part of the city.

A COURTEOUS ACT.

On Thursday afternoon the business houses closed according to the usual custom and when the passengers from the Queen passed through the city they were somewhat disappointed, but their love for botany made up for this, and they were soon busy in plucking flowers and shrubs which grow here in abundance. Many of the residents assisted them in gathering garlands and even plucked them some choice and rare flowers. In the evening a number of the stores opened in order to allow the visitors to purchase articles they were so much in need of. They went away well pleased with their visit to Nanaimo.

THE TELEGRAPH SERVICE.

Mention has previously been made in reference to the nightly telegraph service, but so far the superintendent of the C. P. Telegraph Co has done nothing towards bettering its condition. On Thursday night the office was besieged by visitors anxious to send off telegrams, but although the office was kept open until half an hour beyond the usual time still the people continued to arrive there. The operator was in consequence compelled to work very late, but still he was unable to send off some of them unless he decided to work all night. Among the telegrams were some for the press, which should have reached their destination without delay, and had to be held over simply because the operator could not work night and day. It is to be hoped the superintendent will see into this matter and endeavour to make such arrangements as will enable the traveling public an extended hour to send off their dispatches.

A NEW ENGINE.

The steamer Remus landed a large locomotive, of the Baldwin make, yesterday for the New Vancouver Coal Company, which is to be used in place of one of the other engines. The new one is fitted up in the most modern manner and weighs about 32 tons, and is capable of hauling half as much more coal as any other engine the company have in use.

LITTLE HAPPENINGS.

All the enjoyments advertised to take place yesterday and to-day, have been postponed owing to the excessive rain which has falled and still continues.

The Wellington people will celebrate Dominion day in grand style, and an extensive programme has been arranged for that occasion.

A six-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Black was buried yesterday, having died from the effects of diphtheria.

UNION NEWS.

Return of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Clinton—Cordial Welcome and Presentation.

UNION, June 11.—Mr. G. W. Clinton and his bride returned to Union by steamer Isabel last week. The happy pair were met at the depot by a numerous company of friends, who had engaged the handsome vehicles belonging to Mr. R. Grant, of Union mill. The horses and carriages were decorated for the occasion with ribbons, flags, etc. The Union Jack floated from the flag staff of the Hotel, and the locomotive was not forgotten, as the Star Spangled Banner fluttered gaily in front as the train steamed into Union. On alighting, Mr. and Mrs. Clinton were conducted to seats on the handsome four-in-hand turnout, and were driven to the hotel, accompanied by a host of friends. Mr. Clinton is paymaster of the Union Colliery Co. His kind and obliging disposition has won the esteem and confidence of all who know him. On Thursday evening a number of friends assembled at the hotel for the purpose of presenting Mr. and Mrs. Clinton, the former with a handsome secretary and marble time piece and the latter with a silver tea service and water set. The chair was taken by Mr. F. D. Little, superintendent of the Union Colliery Company, who in a neat little speech explained the objects of the meeting, and heartily welcomed the young couple to Union. The presents, together with a congratulatory address, were presented to Mr. and Mrs. Clinton. The address was signed on behalf of the employees by Richard Short, William Anthony, Andrew McKnight, Thomas Russell, David M. Osyor, William Mitchell, W. A. Gilchrist, Robert Bryden, Sam C. Davis.

Mr. Clinton suitably responded, and said he was very much surprised to find himself and wife the recipients of such a mark of their esteem, and trusted that they would still continue to deserve a little of their kindness and that they would always prize their handsome gifts, not for their intrinsic value but for the motive which prompted the givers. The rest of the evening was spent in conviviality, and addresses, etc., were given by the chairman, Dr. J. W. Young, and other friends.
